

The infusion of new LCFF dollars results in lower class size

Schools in district receiving larger funding increases shrink the count of college-prep courses in proportion to growing number of elective courses

